

NUST Hosts Khush-Haali Fellows for an Exposure Visit

The National University of Sciences and Technology (NUST) recently hosted the Khush-Haali Fellowship students from the Center for Law & Justice (CLA) , a dedicated initiative aimed at supporting the daughters of sanitary workers through education, skills development, and empowerment.

Building Confidence and Breaking Barriers

The Khush-Haali Fellowship goes beyond financial assistance; it is designed to eliminate societal stigma, provide equal opportunities, and help young girls become empowered and proud citizens of Pakistan. Through a series of workshops and training sessions, these students are introduced to skills that are essential in today's technological and professional world.

What Did the Visit Include?

During their visit to NUST, the fellows explored key departments and offices across the campus. They observed the academic infrastructure, working environment, and the diverse facilities available to students. This hands-on exposure helped them envision possibilities for their academic and professional futures.

Inspiring Words from NUST Leadership

Pro-Rector Dr. Rizwan Riaz personally addressed the fellows, encouraging them to pursue higher education at NUST and beyond, regardless of financial limitations. He emphasized that academic excellence and co-curricular achievements are the true gateways to success, and every deserving student should have access to quality education.

Empowering Youth Through Education

The exposure visit served to inspire confidence in the fellows, showcasing a future where inclusion, dignity, and equal opportunities are within reach. By providing these young girls with a glimpse into university life and professional environments, the fellowship empowers them to dream bigger and aim higher.

Looking Ahead

NUST remains committed to fostering a culture of diversity, equity, and inclusion. Through hosting initiatives like the Khush-Haali Fellowship, the university continues to play a vital role in enabling youth from marginalized communities to step forward as future leaders and changemakers. Education for all is not just a goal — it is a responsibility we must all share.
